ⁱⁱ It is understood that a person may be incapable of giving genuine consent if affected by a natural, induced or age-related incapacity.

ⁱⁱⁱ It is understood that such deprivation of liberty may, in some circumstances, include exacting forced labour or otherwise reducing a person to servile status as defined in the Supplementary Convention on the Abolition of Slavery of 1956. It is also understood that the conduct described in this element, includes trafficking in persons, in particular women and children

^{iv} The deprivation is not intended to include birth-control measures which have a non-permanent effect in practice

^v It is understood that “genuine consent” does not include consent obtained through deception.
